

grown over, to reappear in after years when the hair falls out.

Miss Osborn says a completely bald head is rare, but that various patterns of baldness are frequent in man. The most common type is complete baldness on top of the head. A strong second is the "high forehead" baldness.

Now, if bald-headed men persist in marrying bald-headed women, what will the harvest be, say in the year 2500 A. D.?

SHE'S SHOVEL MINER!

Biwabik, Minn.—Hildur Houvelik, a young Finnish woman, has just sold for $15,000 a mine she operated in the Mesaba iron range. She has taken out thousands of dollars worth of iron with no other tool than a shovel.

HOW TO AVOID AND TREAT SUNSTROKE

Prolonged exposure to hot sun, especially in a high degree of humidity or in cases of severe physical exertion, may cause sunstroke.

Drinking of alcoholic liquors before exertion in the sun is apt to result in sunstroke. Strong drink is probably the most common predisposing factor in sunstroke.

Prevention consists in avoiding exposure to hot sun at midday. Wear light clothing and light headgear, with space above for ventilation. Avoid alcohol.

Symptoms of sunstroke preceding the attack are pain and fullness in the head, with a feeling of oppression. Following this comes complete insensibility. The face is red, pupils dilated, the skin hot, with perspiration. The breathing is labored and sighing; the pulse slow and full.

Treatment consists in reducing the temperature. Send for a doctor and pending his arrival remove the patient to a shady, cool place. Loosen and remove superfluous clothing. Apply cold water or ice to the head, neck, chest and arm pits.

When consciousness returns the patient may be allowed to drink cool water freely. Do not attempt to give stimulants. The doctor will attend to that if necessary when he arrives.

One may often prevent sunstroke upon feeling the first symptoms by stopping all exertion, finding a shady, cool place, lying down and bathing face, hands and chest in cold water and drinking freely of cool (not ice) water.
